

 A reminder for international students
FSBEI HE SAINT LUKA LSMU of MoH of Russia
on the prevention of extremism and terrorism

What is extremism and terrorism?

- Extremism is a manifestation of radical views, often leading to violence or violation of the rights of others.
- Terrorism is the use of violence or threats of violence to achieve political, religious, or other goals.

Why is this so important?

- The safety of students and society depends on preventing the spread of extremist ideas.
- «Ignorance of the law does not exempt from responsibility» (Lat. Ignorantia juris non excusat). The responsibility for compliance with safety laws and regulations lies with every student!

How to recognize the signs of extremism and terrorism?

- Propaganda of violence and hatred against other nationalities, religions, and races.
- Attempt to involve in illegal groups or activities.
- Distribution of prohibited materials or calls to break the law.

Rules of conduct!

- DO NOT support or spread extremist ideas.
- Avoid participating in suspicious groups or activities.
- Report any suspicious activities or individuals to the Dean's Office or University Security.

Where to contact in case of threat or suspicion?

- To the security service or the dean's office of the university.
- To the police at the emergency number (102 or 112).
- To the diplomatic mission of your country in Russia.

Safety tips!

- Respect the culture and laws of the host country.
- Be careful online – DO NOT follow questionable links or join suspicious online groups.
- Maintain good relationships with other students and teachers.

Conclusion!

- Prevention of extremism and terrorism is the key to your safety and the peace of society. Comply with the law and be vigilant!
- Take care of yourself and your loved ones!
